

Insight: Who Knows the Group?

Insight Defined:

The capacity for understanding one's own or another's thoughts, feelings, motives, and problems

"Sight with the eyes of the mind," mental vision, understanding,"

Discussion Questions:

1. Does everyone have insight?
2. What is the importance of insight?
3. Why is insight one of the most important factors for treatment to be useful?
4. What is it commonly called when someone lacks insight into a problem in his or her life?
5. Does simply saying or believing something is true or not true make it reality?
6. How can you gain/increase insight?

Exercise – Who Knows the Group? – Directions:

The object of the game is for people to try to insightfully guess how the group will answer various questions.

One person goes at a time each round and the counselor will read one of the questions listed at the end of the exercise”

For example – the question may be “How many people here like pizza”

The player whose turn it is then should make a prediction as to the total number of people (besides him/herself) who will answer YES to the selected question. By show of hands, after the prediction is made, everyone who said yes/true should raise his or her hand

Scoring:

- Number of “Yes” guessed exactly = 5 points
- Number of “Yes” one off (plus or minus) = 3 points
- Number of “Yes” two off (plus or minus) = 1 point

So back to the example: Player 1 goes first and the counselor asks “How many people here like pizza?” Player 1 then guesses that 5 people in the group will say they like pizza. The counselor then instructs the rest of the group to raise their hand if they like pizza. Suppose 5 people raise their hand then Player 1 got it exactly right! If four or six people raise their hand he was one off and he gets 3 points, etc.

Play then passes to the left and the counselor selects a new question for the next player and repeat the process

IMPORTANT - For this activity to be fully effective, counselor should take time to process people's answers for each round and generate open discussion. After the guessing part is done in each round, ask people who raised their hand to say "yes" to share their personal answer for that round if they said
